Covid-19 Update – Entec supply chains remain OPEN

Following the directive issued by the British government on Monday 23rd March, the company has implemented elements of its business continuity strategy. All staff that are able to perform their role remotely have been issued with the necessary tools to manage their daily tasks from home.

As a UK company we will comply with all government directives whilst putting in place the necessary processes and procedures that will enable us to continue to deliver a normal service to our global customers. We note that many governments have issued similar directives that might impact our various suppliers and which could extend supply chains as controls are implemented.

Entec warehouse and logistics teams remain on site, operating under strict guidelines that minimise the risk to both their safety, wellbeing and the spread of contamination.

The situation and the flow of information is changing daily. Entec will continue to comply with any directives issued by the British Government and will notify any changes to our working practices via this medium or directly through our sales and customer service teams.

Entec have always worked in collaborative partnerships, our service to your businesses will continue, your trade with us underwrites business continuity, we are grateful for the support of our suppliers for finding new ways of working.

Thank you for your support.
